

Talk About It

Bottom Line

Grace first insults you so it can then amaze you.

Scripture

Romans 3:9; 6:23

Conversation Questions

1. Think of someone in your life who “has grace.” What does that phrase mean and how does the person embody it? Would you say you have much grace?
2. How often does the word “sin” come up in polite conversation? Explain your answer.
3. In what ways have you seen that sin overpromises and under-delivers?
4. The message taught that we devote our efforts to the consequences of sin rather than the reality of sin itself. How might that understanding change our perspective on world events and personal relations?
5. When did grace first insult you? How did you respond?
6. How would you explain to an unbeliever the reality that they are “under the power of sin”?
7. When did grace next amaze you?

Icebreaker

What comes to mind when you think of Grace?

Activity

Consider who in your life needs grace this week. How can you extend God’s grace to them? Take a moment to do that this week.
